GOOD NEWS FOR HOMEMAKERS

By Shirley W. Walton

Harvest Time Tradition

The early settlers found it necessary to use their field products for food, decorating and fun. They did not shortchange their youth, providing toys which were mostly handmade. Some of these were very special and many have inspired today's toys of simulated materials.

Corn husk dolls were the earliest American toys. When the Mayflower children arrived, the dolls were already here. It is believed that the Indians not only taught the Pilgrims to grow corn, but to make the dolls also.

You can use the husks of sweet corn grown in your own garden or bought from a produce counter, or the husks from field corn. Before beginning your project, look at the entire corn husk to check for color and completeness.

The inside leaves have smooth satiny texture and the out shucks are coarse and heavy. Also, there are right and wrong sides and varying colors, strength and pliability.

Now, as in the 1600's the only essential tools are a pair of scissors and the previously dried husks. In these modern times, however, you may wish to use thread, wire and dyes.

Our ancestors used berries and barks to make dyes for the better dressed dolls. All husks were bleached with wood ashes. Today's household bleach (one part to eight parts water) will eliminate any bacteria or mold. For best results, soak the dried husk in warm water a few minutes, and always work with damp husks.

In the early homes, cornhusks were tied in bunches and often hung alongside bunches of herbs and other plants. Today the Christmas and fall wreaths are hallmarks of the holidays and a favorite wall embellishment. Cornhusk wreaths were made years ago by the American Colonists.

For cornhusk wreaths, you will need cornhusks, a plastic foam wreath base, florist picks, small decorations and ribbon for a bow. You may wish to keep your wreath very simple and use cornhusks without added trim or decorations. You can substitute a wire frame or coat hanger for the base. Cornhusk dolls and a checked gingham bow might be your choice for decorations or use pine needles, foliage and red berries for extra trim.

Soak the cornhusks in water until they become pliable, then cut them into two-by-five inch strips, fold them into loops and attach them to the plastic foam wreath base with florist picks or small wires bent in the shape of hairpins. Fern pins work much better than other items for fastening the shucks to the base.

To provide accent, you might add small sprigs of greens, red berries and small Christmas figures. This is a good place to tie in your color schemes and use your creativity. Place these at the bottom of the wreath. At the top, place a bright colorful bow nestled in a cluster of greenery.

For specific information on making corn husk items, you may call (352-8244) or write the Appomattox County Extension Office.

Our office has run more copies of 'Christmas in Appomattox.' Should you want a copy, please contact our office. It will be a pleasure to share this booklet with recipes and gift ideas with you.

THANKS-GIVEN" REPORTS

On Monday, November 22, the joined faculties of the Appomattox Elementary and Appomattox Primary Schools adopted self-study reports on Communications and Social Studies. Thanksgiving Holiday is the deadline for completion of all committee reports. Much teacher effort and hardwork has paid great results by keeping our K-6 self-study on target! Pictured above are chairpersons who provided excellent leadership: Mrs. Henrietta Johnson, Mrs. Lou Rogers, and Mrs. Yvonne Paulette.

Forest's 4-H Class

The meeting was called to order by the president. We played 7up. The secretary read the minutes of our last meeting. Then we had the old and new business, and passed out the last year's project book. We talked aobut and passed out sheets for the 4-H Share the Fun. We also talked about the 4-H Public Speaking. Then we turned the meeting over to Mrs. Walton, and she passed out Christmas home safety cards. She told us about the Christmas Arts & Crafts booklet. She showed us some Christmas ornaments. She showed us how to make many things. She showed the boys how to sew. She showed us how to make stuffed ornaments. She showed us how to make candles and other things.
